

Acknowledgments

Though only my name appears on the cover of this dissertation, a great many people have contributed to this endeavor.

I would like to express my deepest gratitude to my advisor, Dr. Sriram Venkataraman, for his endless guidance, caring, motivation and patience. I would like to especially thank him for always believing in me and for constantly pushing me to better myself. It has been an honor for me to be his first Ph.D. student. I hope that one day I will become as good an advisor to my students as he has been to me.

I would like to sincerely thank Dr. Pradeep K. Chintagunta for being the best mentor that anyone can ever have. I cannot thank him enough for being so generous with his time and help with several aspects of this research. I am grateful to him for trusting me and for his endorsement on the job market.

I am forever indebted to my dissertation committee members. I am thankful to Dr. Sundar Bharadwaj for his insightful comments and constructive criticisms at different stages of my research. I truly appreciate that he introduced me to the world of marketing strategy. I also appreciate his continuous support and encouragement during the job market. I am also indebted to Dr. Jagdish Sheth for sharing his wisdom and expertise on the automobile industry and marketing philosophy. The numerous discussions I have had with him helped shape my understanding of how to be a good scholar.

Many thanks to my good friends and colleagues Abhishek Kathuria, Jung Lee, Yi Wang, Jochen Schmittmann, Chen Lin, Omar Rodriguez, Chirag Kasbekar, Sukari Farrington, Ellen Tan, and Astrid Fontaine for creating wonderful memories at Emory that we will cherish forever. I would also like to thank my dear friends Honey Jain, Chongchao Zhao, Seok-Chul Sean Kwon, Sameera Khan, Adil Sadiq, Alina Mishra, Vivek Sangwan, and Meera Ashar for never giving up on me despite my limited availability.

I cannot thank my family enough for their love and faith in me. Without the encouragement of my mom, my dad, and my sister –Satiye, Rafet, and Gül– pursuing a Ph.D. degree in the United States would not have been conceivable. I would like to also thank my new sisters

Esther and Yanwen for tirelessly encouraging and helping me.

Last but not least, I would like to thank my wife, Ayşe, for her emotional, gastronomical, and intellectual support throughout my Ph.D. education. She has always been there through the good times and bad. I am incredibly lucky to have her in my life.
